

Apply to Host a SELI Fellow

The Southern Education Foundation values and relies on Southern Education Leadership Initiative (SELI) host site partnerships to expose and train the next generation of education leaders to explore strategies for improving education, addressing community needs, and putting theory into practice.

Organizations interested in hosting a SELI fellow should review the SELI Host Site Application Questions and the SELI Student Learning Outcomes below before submitting their workplan by Mar. 1, 2023.

2023 SELI Host Site Application Questions

2023 SELI host site applicants must be a school district, nonprofit, higher education institution, or state agency located within the South and have a physical office location where a student can work during the 8-week period of May 22-July 14, 2023. Placement sites and their fellows must mutually agree on a safe, comfortable work arrangement ensuring 40 hours/week of work.

1. In what ways does your organization address racial inequity in education in the South?
2. What large and small education-focused projects would a fellow specifically work on at your organization and what would their responsibilities include? Note: While fellows may be occasionally responsible for some administrative tasks, their primary function is not to serve as clerical support.
3. How would the fellow work towards achieving the SELI Student Learning Outcomes?
4. Please describe the work space offered to the fellow (i.e. office, cubicle, collaborative space, etc.).
5. What special skills or qualifications would you hope that your fellow brings?
6. Please describe the plan for the fellow's onboarding (i.e. planning calls, reading, orientation, etc.).

Note: SEF will provide each fellow a modest stipend based on their educational level to support their living costs throughout the fellowship. Placement sites are required to identify possible housing options for their fellow, should the fellow need to relocate for the summer in their application.
